THIS IS UNEVALUATED INFORMATION

1. During February 1956, the management of the Rudarsko Topionickarski Bazen, BOR approved [] the construction of a new copper smelter at Bor for processing concentrates from the deposits at Bor and Majdenpek. [] includes a roaster, smelting furnace, converter, casting facilities (with waste heat energy absorption) and sulfur dioxide gas collection (for use in a sulfuric acid plant which will be constructed on the site. This plant will provide acid by pipeline for the new superphosphate plant to be built at Prahovo). The smelter was designed so that it will operate efficiently in spite of wide fluctuations in the grades of concentrates, fluxes and fuels. Our calculations showed that concentrates from both the Majdenpek and Bor deposits can either be combined or run separately.
